

SpanishGenie Software License Terms

Review version 0.2.0-free-test-review.2 | 17 October 2026

Prepared by Publicity for Dan and qualified legal review. DRAFT ONLY. No effective date or approved customer URL. This proposed text describes the required successor test build; it does not certify implementation or authorize distribution.

Scope and operator

These proposed terms cover the free SpanishGenie for Windows test build, its installer and accompanying documentation. The legal operator and licensor must be identified before these terms can take effect. LanguageGenies is a product name here, not proof that a corporation exists or owns the necessary rights.

Current formation direction is one Delaware C corporation, LanguageGenies, directly owned by Dan. It is not yet formed; no stock or IP transfer is assumed. Studio MindStride is not being formed as a parent or retired in this phase. Corporate Compliance coordinates legal review and verified licensor facts; Publicity owns this draft. FD1 must identify the actual licensor and approved public address before use. Synthetic identity is not a substitute.

Download and declarations

Receiving the free installer requires the download page checks and access to links for these terms, the Privacy Policy and the Community Rewards Terms. Downloading or installing alone does not record legal acceptance or start the trial.

Before normal use, you must make the separate current read and understand declarations for all three documents. Opening, reading or saving a PDF is not itself a declaration. If you decline, SpanishGenie use does not begin. Unchanged current declarations can be reused; missing or materially changed documents require a new declaration. A declaration does not enroll you in an active Rewards program or waive rights that cannot lawfully be waived.

Two independent time limits

A new eligible trial lasts 7,200 elapsed seconds, beginning when SpanishGenie first commits its ready state after the required declarations. Time continues while the application is closed, the computer sleeps or the computer is offline. Download and installation do not begin this two-hour clock.

The test build also expires at the start of the next local calendar day after its original successful installation for that build and Windows user installation. The time zone applicable at installation fixes this deadline. This is not an additional 24-hour period: an installation at 11:59 p.m. may leave only about one minute.

For a new unpaid trial, use ends at the earlier of the two-hour trial deadline and the fixed installation-day midnight cutoff. A trial cannot begin in a build whose cutoff has already passed.

What happens at expiry

At ordinary two-hour trial expiry, SpanishGenie stops its transformations while ordinary Windows typing and existing document text remain available. An already-running session is not interrupted by a payment dialog solely because the two-hour trial ends.

At the hard build cutoff, SpanishGenie stops its features in all attached applications and presents one explanatory dialog through its controller. A later deliberate attempt to launch SpanishGenie explains the expiry again. Closing or acknowledging the dialog exits the SpanishGenie attempt; it does not close the application in which you were typing. Ordinary typing, document contents, uninstall, recovery and safe diagnostics remain available.

Proposed explanatory text: This SpanishGenie test build expired at midnight following installation. SpanishGenie is disabled. Ordinary typing remains available. A newer approved test build is required.

Payment, renewal, reconnection, cached or recovered permission, and an older-version fallback cannot unlock an expired test build. This test-build cutoff also applies when a retained paid or synthetic entitlement is otherwise valid. It does not revoke or rewrite that entitlement or its original lifetime.

Reinstallation and retained history

Repair, reinstallation of the same build, downgrade, rollback, restored state, relaunch and clock or time-zone changes do not extend the original cutoff or create a replacement trial. An approved newer build is a distinct release, not a promise of a new trial. Historical trial, declaration and paid records retain their original meaning.

If required cutoff or permission records are missing, corrupt or cannot be verified, SpanishGenie must remain disabled with a bounded recovery explanation. Removing local state is not a supported way to obtain another trial. The release must be tested for these cases; purely local enforcement is not guaranteed to resist administrator control or a complete machine rollback.

Limited evaluation permission

Subject to final approval of these terms and the release, the verified licensor would grant a personal, limited, nonexclusive and nontransferable right to evaluate the test build for one Windows user on one computer during its permitted time. This proposal grants no current distribution right and promises no replacement-computer transfer.

You retain rights in your original documents and content. No ownership of that content is transferred by using the input method. Software, technology and third-party component rights remain with their respective rights holders; applicable third-party notices must accompany the final package.

Use restrictions

Do not bypass the build or trial controls, use someone else's license credentials, redistribute or sell this test build, remove proprietary notices, or use it unlawfully. Reverse engineering restrictions, if included in the final terms, must preserve rights that applicable law makes nonwaivable. The final rights and third-party notice inventory require review before release.

No charge or active Rewards

This phase provides a free test download and permitted evaluation. It creates no charge, subscription, automatic conversion, purchase obligation or Rewards earnings. Real Checkout charges and Rewards payouts are inactive. A future payment page or payment button does not authorize a charge or extend this test build.

No purchase tax amount or paid refund transaction is presented in this free phase. These terms do not amend an earlier purchase, refund right, paid license lifetime or included-update commitment. Any later commercial offer needs its own approved seller, tax and refund presentation. The separate accepted commercial planning direction remains Stripe-hosted Checkout and USD 12 per user and computer; this draft does not activate that offer.

Experimental software and support

This is an experimental, time-limited build. Keep an independent copy of important work. No compatibility, performance, uninterrupted service or availability of a successor is promised by this review draft. Those limitations do not remove rights or remedies that applicable law protects.

Provisional contact carried forward for license and support questions: mindstride@gmail.com. Its public use and operational handling must be confirmed with FD1. No support response time or meeting service is promised here.

Legal review still required

Before final customer use, qualified review must settle the license grant and assent wording; applicable age and geographic scope; warranty and liability terms; governing law and dispute process; and all mandatory consumer protections. This draft imposes no arbitration clause, class-action waiver or liability cap equal to the zero test price.

Final terms must identify the actual licensor, public address, document version, immutable URL, exact delivered-byte hash and prospective effective date together. Material changes require new declarations under the accepted stage rules. This review version is not a current agreement to accept in the product.